III. Picture Perception and Description Test (PPDT)

- PPDT:

As the name suggests, Picture Perception and Description Test (PPDT hence) is associated with two skills – perception of a situation from an image and the art of describing that.

- Aim of PPDT:

Speaking English without any hesitation is a challenge for many Indian students. Still, in order to hone the skill, learners need to practice speaking since only practice itself can lead to perfection. But sometimes the learners may face a challenge about what to speak on. In that case, Picture Perception and Description Test can be very useful. Besides growing the speaking skills, it strengthens the reasoning skills, thoughtful interpretation of a situation among the learners. It will develop objectivity and is constructive and purposeful in nature. With proper guidance, it can also be effectively applied in creating a positive mindset amongst the learners.

- Steps in PPDT:

Step 1: The instructor projects a picture for 1 minute.

Step 2: The learners need to see the picture with minute details.

Step 3: The learners need to express themselves through their speech.

Step 4: The learners will gradually grasp the skill of thoughtful expressions.

Step 5: As the time/class progresses, the pictures will be more abstract in nature, making the difficulty level high for the learners.

- Example:

The learners will be asked to express what they think about this picture.

IV. ROLE PLAY

Role-play is any speaking activity when a learner plays the role of any characters for a short period of time and expresses themselves likewise. Learners can also be given an imaginary situation so that they can put themselves into it and speak their mind.

- Aims of Role play

Language learning actually becomes fruitful if they are used in a practical way. And role play gives the learners ample opportunity to practically apply the English language. The ultimate aim of role play is to generate in the learners fluency in speaking. In short, Role play helps the learners to practice speaking in a conversational situation, build confidence and fluency, assess progress, and put learning into action.

Steps:

1. Presenting an imaginary situation for the learners.
2. Helping them to present the situation in their own way as a certain character.
3. Role play can be followed by certain preorganized scripts. Learners will play their respective roles according to the script.
4. Learners will be able to think, rethink, feel and decide.

Example:

Suppose you are a witness to a horrific train accident. Describe your role in that situation.
