	As the documentary on “WOMEN TRAFFICKING” was shown to the students. The main focus of the seminar was confined to Women Trafficking. The main objective of the seminar was held for sensitizing the girls’ students in rural area where this college is situated. It was advised to the students in the seminar about the fake advertisement and lucrative jobs in social media. It was resolved in the seminar to make aware the girl students about social evils. “WOMEN TRAFFICKING” is a serious offence. India is a big source; destination and transit nation for both labour and sex trafficking. In India, 90 percent of trafficking occurs domestically (intra-state or inter-state), and 10 percent occurs across national border 2. Recent studies³ have thrown light on the root cause of trafficking, focusing both on the demand and supply sides of the situation. The key factors influencing the supply side of human trafficking are poverty, globalization, social practices, natural disasters and governance. On other hand, factors like demand for labour in sectors like commercial sex work (CSW), brick factories etc. determine the demand side of trafficking. Given demand and supply's interdependence, addressing both types of facts have been central to curbing trafficking in India The existing legislative structure will be reviewed and additional legislative measures taken by identified departments to implement the Policy. This will also involve a review of all existing laws including personal, customary and tribal laws, subordinate legislation, and related rules as well as executive and administrative regulations to eliminate all gender discriminatory references. The specific measures required would be evolved through a consultation process involving civil society, National Commission for Women and Department of Women and Child Development. In appropriate cases the consultation process would be widened to the ground level of the society.
